

Exercises in Commercial Transactions

This book trains the reader to deal with commercial problems. While the book deals with traditional encounters, such as employment agreements, shareholder arrangements, partnership agreements, acquisitions, stock redemptions, guarantees, and escrow agreements, its primary function is to develop the thought processes essential to practice as an effective commercial lawyer. All problems, materials, and solutions are renderings of actual transactions, and each problem and solution is accompanied by the authors analysis of what was done and why it was done.
