

Outbreak

Terror strikes a small town in central Virginia, which has been immobilized by a deadly outbreak. People are dying like flies because the vast array of known medicines are not working. Unable to stop the deaths, the hospital team in charge begins a frantic search to find the source of and the defense for this deadly bacterial strain that is causing peoples bodies to overload. This timely story illustrates the on-going challenges faced by the worldwide medical community as it desperately tries to keep pace with the ever-increasing new strains of viruses and antibiotic resistant diseases.
