

Every Young Mans Dream: Confessions of a Southern League Shortstop

I ruined my own life. I had the best arm in the Southern League. A whip, a slingshot, Goliath would have fallen from my stone. . . .So Darrel Skaitts, outcast Southern League shortstop, begins his tale. Cowardly and courageous, softhearted and cold of blood, part sharper part fool . . . on his shoulders the weight of an awful evil he has done, he sees his own end coming fast and seeks one last chance at redemption.
