Not illustrated. 1906 edition. Excerpt: ... on the bed, my eyes closed, and the Napoleonic deathtrance, so-called by my X-Faculty, had begun. Of course I cannot judge, having my eyes shut, of the resemblance of my features and face under the above described circumstances to those of Napoleon Bonaparte in death; all I know is from the remarks of the persons who have witnessed this Napoleonic death-trance, so-called, to wit: Mr. S. G., asked me to desist, said it was very affecting, that he was unaccustomed to a trance, and asked me not to enter it again in his presence. (Question by Dr. Wood: Were you conscious during this time? Answer: Entirely conscious during all this time.) A few days later, I mentioned this occurrence to Mr. S. W. and Dr. E. F. when they were both visiting me. They expressed a desire to see me under the so-called Napoleonic trance. I did so under the same conditions as before Mr. S. G. When I entered the deathtrance, while my eyes were closed, Mr. W. was so affected by the trance that he acted as though he were literally in the presence of death, whispering in a reverential tone to Dr. E. F., It is exactly like Napoleons death-mask, I have the photograph of it at home. I afterwards asked Mr. W. if he had made that remark to Dr. E. F., and he admitted it frankly. (Question by Dr. Wood: How do you come out of these trances? Answer: By effort of conscious will.) These were the only occasions upon which I entered the Napoleonic death-trance, so-called, with one exception. The exception was in the early Summer of 1899, when at the request of Drs. A. F., Sen. and C. McD., I entered the Napoleonic death-trance, so-called. After I had entered the death-trance I heard

Dr. A. F., Sen., say in a low tone to Dr. C. McD., Come around to the side and see the profile....
