

Jack Clayton (British Film Makers)

Francois Truffaut called The Innocents the best English film after Hitchcock Goes to America. Tennessee Williams said The Great Gatsby was a film whose artistry even surpassed the original novel. The maker of both films was Jack Clayton, one of the greatest English directors of the post-war era, best remembered for the trail-blazing Room at the Top. This is the first full-length critical study of Claytons work. Neil Sinyard draws on the directors private papers for a fresh analysis of the individual films. The book contains new material on Claytons many unrealized projects and includes his previously unpublished short story The Enchantment --as poignant and revealing as the films themselves.
