

Recruiting Lawyers

Locating talented, smart associates requires more than simply looking at their class rankings and grade point averages. Law firms must match their needs to the skills of their applicants. This informative resource includes timesaving worksheets, checklists, and forms to help law firms determine what type of associates they need, where to find that particular type of associate, and how to have success in hiring them. Law firms range from solo practices to midsize and large firms, and recruiting strategies are different for each of them. Recruiting Lawyers also addresses the needs of nonlaw environments in selecting, screening, evaluating, and hiring lawyers.
