

A Parallel Universe

Literary Nonfiction (Criminal Law, Race Relations, U.S. Political History). Contemporary Fiction. A unique blending of nonfiction (the defense lawyers perspective) and fiction (the writers view) on a topic of devastating concern to victims, the accused and, surprisingly, all the rest of us. Alex Landon (the lawyer) and Elaine Halleck (the novelist) explore a difficult topic the effect of laws enacted in the aftermath of brutal and sensationalized crimes, usually murders of white children on those accused of lesser sex crimes and on society as a whole. The two authors accounts parallel one another, describing accused people exiled into a parallel universe where principles enshrined in the American dream are ignored. A PARALLEL UNIVERSE Two tales of public folly and personal devastation In this genre-busting morality tale, two authors take the reader on two unexpected journeys unexpected because they oppose vast and vague perceptions that are themselves embraced with moral fervor. The timeline of both the fictional and nonfictional story begins in 2000 and traverses a fearful decade. The millennium bug doesnt materialize, but the 9/11 attacks do, bringing a stampede of apocalyptic horsemen disease scares, economic malaise, a senseless war and simmering racism. The setting of both tales is mostly California, said to be the future of the world. Here, helicopters pursuing illegal aliens, scrambling jet fighters, and black towers beaming Amber alerts preside over 14-lane freeways. This landscape is convulsed from time to time by abductions of photogenic youngsters rare tragedies that are crafted into media tsunamis bringing in their wake designer laws that ultimately make things worse. The landscape is highlighted by a snapshot: a blonde, Sunday school teacher stares at a computer, her hand covering her mouth, while a sheriff shows her Megans list, a database profiling one out of every 135 California men which could include a teenager caught with his underage girlfriend, or a man who took a leak in a field near the Mexican border. Outside the photo frame are those who enabled it: politicians molding misinformation into images starring themselves as saviors. An average sex offender, in their lifetime, commits 360 sex offenses, claims one. Thus is created a class of men who live in fear of a knock on the door, don't get jobs and are driven from their homes. One is Danny Fernandez, a single father who clings to the American dream even as a witch hunt exiles him into a parallel universe where principles enshrined in that dream are ignored. Alex Landon is an attorney specializing in criminal law. He is an adjunct professor at the University of San Diego School of Law, teaching Corrections and Sentencing for 26 years; past president of California Attorneys for Criminal Justice and the San Diego Criminal Defense Bar Association; and former Executive Director of the Defenders Program of San Diego, Inc. He is a frequent speaker at seminars and public programs. Elaine Halleck is a journalist, graphic designer and linguist. She has contributed to publications including the (Detroit) Metro Times, the Tokyo Journal, the Sacramento News and Review and the Guadalajara Reporter.
