

Repeat-Letter Sudoku (Mensa)

Double letters mean double fun for puzzle mavens, who will sharpen their pencils and their wits to solve these clever sudoku variations. Conceived by the man who has been creating sudoku longer than anyone alive, they dispense with one of the standard rules of the game: no repeats. Instead, these brainteasers include at least one letter that occurs two times in every row, column, and diagonal. That makes it harder to eliminate possibilities and complete the grid. And theres more: in every spread, the phrases in the two sudoku are related. So, one might have breakfast, while the other has cold pizza; dentistry and candy bars; and eyestrain and nude beach.
