

SE - The Law of the European Company

From October 8th 2004, European business life entered a completely new situation as it became possible to form a public limited liability company which is almost similar in each individual country and that can be formed through a cross-border merger between companies in different EU countries. The instrument that enables these extraordinary structural features to be used by European companies is called the SE Directive - a Statute for a European company. This book describes precisely and in brief terms these new rules and in particular the new opportunities for European business life caused by them. The book contains practical instructions as to which kind of constitution is most beneficial in different situations, just as the book includes comments on tax related consequences.
