

The Duty of Medical Practitioners and CAM/TCM Practitioners to Inform Competent Adult Patients about Alternatives

The book pays interest to a small and almost untouched topic: a health practitioner's duty to inform about alternatives. It covers both orthodox medicine practitioners and CAM practitioners. The topic is explored in a comparative way, examining the laws of not only common law jurisdictions, such as the USA, England, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, but also two East Asia jurisdictions (China and Japan). It uses the collective wisdom of several common law jurisdictions, but also differentiates them. It places the issue of disclosure of alternatives in a clear and wider context, making a cogent distinction between diagnosis/treatment and information disclosure. ?
